JORDAN RUBS IT INTO MICHIGAN

Alumni, Including Killilea Of Milwaukee, Accused Of Hiring Star Athletes.

ROOSEVELT FOR FOOTBALL REFORM

Wants Umpires To Control The Field And Be Given Widest Latitude In Enforcing Rules Against Brutality.

E. S. Jordan, the more or less beloved alumnus of Wisconsin University who recently, after many years of effort with publishers, found in Collier's Magazine ready and willing to accept his expose of Wisconsin's athletics, has himself into the limelight again this week. Now it is the University of Michigan that is placed upon the split and if Jordan is to be believed it is more deeply dyed in professionalism than Chicago, Illinois, or Wisconsin, which have preceded it in the procession over the hot coals.

As in the stories of the other schools, Jordan does not once come out with any direct evidence against the Michigan athletes and once more there will be nothing proved. He centers his attack on Coach Yost of the football team which just now occupies the most important place in western athletics. Tom Hammond, the star player on the Yost football machine, as well as the famous Heston, who is now coaching the Drake team, are also given a round of exposure by the former editor of the Wisconsin Cardinal.

The Yost "winning system" is scored most severely by Jordan. This system is headed by "Yost & Baird, victory makers," and is aided by alumnus.

Called a Cash System

"The path of Michigan has been blazed by her alumnus," the writer says, "and the faculty has been subdued by the bleacher crowd. The alumnus serves as an athletic clearing-house and supplement the field agency work of the Yost school of victory. In academic prestige Michigan pays handsomely for the kind of loyalty and college pride she breeds. Her mind is diverted from academic channels, she rises on her tiptoes and cries, 'God bless our Yost.' The czar of her 'system' smiles, draws a salary larger than any professor and the mad scramble for victory goes on."

It is charged directly against Yost that he travails annually all over the country, inducing the best athletes to go to the Michigan school. Also it is said that Yost has left a trail of professionalism behind him at the other colleges he coached before he went to Michigan.

Jordan says that once Michigan boasted of her great law school, but now she boasts of "Hurry Up" Yost. He declared that the schoolboys all over the west who are in athletics and know that they have some ability are simply waiting for an invitation from Ann Arbor with its inducements to attend school there and play football.

Heston Left With Bank Account

He declares that the mighty Heston was picked up by an alumnus named Murfin in Detroit and given a good paying position that he could carry on with his college work and his athletics. It is also stated that when Heston left the school after four years he had a bank account.

"We want simple rules, not complicated rules, because complicated rules offer too many loopholes."

Asks Authorities to Act

"The responsible authorities of the several colleges whose teams play together should have what may be called a gentlemen's agreement among themselves that these rules shall be enforced in spirit as well as in letter, each being held responsible for what goes on in his own college, and each seeing to the permanent removal from the game not only of the foul or brutal player but of the man who is not a bona fide student and amateur."

"It would be a real misfortune to lose so many and vigorous a game as football, and to avert such a possibility the college authorities in each college should see to it that the game in that college is clean."

UNDERHANDED WORK IN STANDARD OIL?

Allegation Is Made That Suit Is Started in Order to Learn Inside Affairs of Rival in Trade.

(Cleveland, O., Nov. 21.)

The Great Western Oil company of this city in an answer filed in Common Pleas court to a suit begun against it recently making a bitter attack upon the methods of the Standard Oil company to obtain information concerning the business of its rivals and charges that the Standard spied upon its competitors and that the present suit is a conspiracy to secure knowledge of the Great Western company's affairs.

The suit was begun against the Great Western by Mrs. Annie E. Walsh, guardian of Michael J. Walsh, insane. Walsh owned 250 shares of stock in the Great Western and his guardian began suit to compel an examination of the books. The company in answer says that the guardian has retained Fred W. Lotham to make the examination and that Lotham has been employed by the Standard Oil company for thirty-five years and for ten years was its chief accountant.

The Great Western company sets up that its business is not such as requires any special knowledge, but that expert accountant can make the examination. It is charged that the Standard expects to get information about the Great Western's business and that Lotham, because of his long and intimate association with the Standard, is an unfit person to make the examination and would subject the company to great risk of loss and injury.

Mrs. Walsh, it is alleged, steadily refuses to have any other accountant as her representatives except Lotham.

MEN WHO KNOCKED THE EQUITABLE CO.

Attorney John Nichols Tells on Stand How They Were Disposed Of—Senator Platt a Witness.

(New York, Nov. 21.)

John A. Nichols, the Equitable Assurance society's attorney who wrote to Depew, "Our cantankerous friend is around again as usual," was a witness in the insurance investigation this morning, and said that the "friend" under discussion was a former employee, named W. S. Manning, whom Depew did not know. He said that he paid Manning $450 annually and also paid a newspaper correspondent named Kerr "who persisted in knocking the company."

Senator Platt took the stand shortly before noon. He entered inform and assisted by his counsel and needed help to the witness chair. He said he received contributions from insurance companies, particularly the Equitable, for campaign purposes.

He said the contributions involved the question of whether or not the companies expected the legislators to be under moral obligations not to attack them.

Thomas Cowan, a member of Tammany and a former magistrate employed by the Equitable "real estate department" at $5,400 annually, said he was a "co-between" for the company and the city departments. He said he "did not do much."

NORWEGIAN SHIP MAY BE NO MORE

Large Vessel Strikes Black Rock Ledge, Off Nova Scotia, Then Disappears in the Water.

(Cleveland, O., Nov. 21.)

Clark's Harbor, N. S., Nov. 21.—The Norwegian steamer Turbin, with its captain and crew of sixteen or eighteen men, is thought to have foundered in a terrific gale which swept over Nova Scotia last Friday.

The coasting steamer Edna R., which arrived here Monday from Mud Island, brought news that on Friday about 5 o'clock p. m., a large steamer, supposed to be the Turbin, struck Black Rock ledge off the south coast of the province, backed off in a few minutes, and then disappeared in the raging sea.

Persons on the island who saw the steamer strike on the ledge were a considerable distance away, and owing to the tremendous sea running it was impossible to launch a boat.

No person could be discerned aboard the craft, and so quickly did the steamer go down that no opportunity was given the crew to fight for their lives. No boat could have lived an instant in the sea that was running.

TELEGRAMS IN THE SEN. BURTON TRIAL

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

COURT DECIDES FOR RAILROADS

Under Elkins Law Reduced Rates To Packers May Be Made By Carriers.

THE BOARD CANNOT COMPEL A CUT

When It Comes To Equalizing Charges Between Similar Commodities, The Commission Is Powerless.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Judge Bethea Monday announced a decision in the live stock and packing house products rate case, which admittedly is an added argument in favor of increasing the powers of the Interstate commerce commission, although in this one case it is a victory for the railroads.

The court declares that under the Elkins law the commerce commission is bound by such limitations that it cannot order a reduction of rates on one commodity to correspond with the rates of another commodity which have been reduced by competition.

The third section of the Elkins law specifically provides that the interstate commerce commission shall do nothing to hamper competition, and the court finds that it was the competition for the business of the packers, "under almost one control," which caused the railroads to reduce the rates on packing house products, whereas the business of the cattle shippers was in many hands and therefore there was not the same sharp competition for it.

Government to Appeal.
The case is known to have been watched closely in Washington on account of its bearing on the whole rate situation, and it is probable that it will be appealed, although Attorney L. A. Shaver, representing the commission, said he would have to consult Attorney General Moody before reaching a decision.

FAVORED UNDERTAKER GRAFT IN NEW YORK

Gotham Ministers Are Shown To Have Been Receiving Commissions For Business Delivered.

"You are now in a position," continued Dr. Pratt, "to realize the advantages which are offered me by this kind-hearted undertaker."

Dr. Pratt said afterward that the "burial certificate" had been sent him a year ago and promised $100 discount on his funeral bill when he should be buried.

"A cold-blooded proposition," he commented. "And a few weeks ago I had a letter from a cemetery association offering me a free grave, full size; also informing me that any favors would be thankfully received. I suppose doctors and clergymen receive all sorts of bids for business similar to this."

At the offices of the undertaking concern facsimiles of the circular Dr. Pratt read and the burial permit referred to were shown a reporter.

Many Ministers Accept.
A man named Buckingham, who said he was a representative of Mr. Campbell, declared the burial certificates and circulars had been sent to all the physicians and most of the clergymen in the city.

"The first we sent a year ago," he said, "and followed it recently with the circular. We simply offer to bury poor people at lower prices than other establishments. We generally give a discount of about 10 per cent on funerals which are recommended to us by a clergymen as deserving. The discount goes into the clergymen's pocket or to the credit of the family on the bill, just as the clergymen pleases."

You'd be surprised to know how many grafters there are among the clergy."

THREE RATE BILLS PRESENTED TODAY

Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce Receives Trio of Proposed Remedies.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Washington, Nov. 21.—Three bills for rate legislation were presented to the senate committee on interstate commerce today. It has developed that after all Senator Foraker's bill does not necessarily embody the committee's views on railroad rate legislation. Chairman Elkins therefore has a bill, which is backed by an array of information which experts have been gathering for him during the summer. Another measure is the work of Senator Culom, former chairman of the committee, and joint author with the late John H. Reagan, of Texas, of the interstate commerce act, which Senator Culom says will reflect the President's views on rate legislation.

TELLS OF TAFT'S ISTHMIAN VISIT

MARY HUMPHREY ATTENDED RECEPTION IN COLON.

TAFT COULD DANCE BUT ONCE

Terpsichorean Festivities Were Too Much for Ponderous Statesman in Tropical Climate.

Colon, Canal Zone, Nov. 9, 1905.

The 3rd of November is to the people of Panama what the 4th of July is to us Americans, their natal birthday. This year the event was made doubly interesting by the arrival of Secretary Taft and party on November 2d, which enabled them to add to the interesting events of the three day's celebration. Last year I was stationed at Ancón hospital at this time of the celebration and wrote at some length, describing the festivities. This year's was a repetition of that of last with two or three receptions in honor of Secretary Taft added. There were the bull fights (only the bulls would not fight) the masquerading, the dancing and the fireworks in the evening the same as that of last year. Being in the Colon hospital this year, I could not attend the festivities at Panama, but was told by those who did attend that there were no new features in their manner of celebrating. To us who are used to the deafening racket of explosions, tin horns, whistles, and everything which makes a noise, to be used in adding vim to the celebration, the feeble attempts of these people is pathetic. On one of the three days of the celebration a procession of fifty or more masked figures went past the hospital and the only announcement we had of it was a feeble beat of a drum, a mouth organ and a home-manufactured fiddle. Not a tin horn or a bell or a fire-cracker, and not even a shout or any demonstration on the part of the maskers or of the array of small boys who followed on behind, it might have been a funeral procession for all the noise that emanated from it.

It was the same over town where all the festivities were held. Colon too, had its daily bull-fight, only the bulls wouldn't fight. They seem to have more sense than the people. A drive around the enclosure where the bull-fight was held, disclosed a quiet orderly crowd, mostly of colored people. There was no outward expression of enthusiasm and no manifestation of abandonment to pleasure as is always present with us on such occasions. I wondered what they would think if their natal day should be celebrated as our's is. Perhaps however, they are the wiser of the two, at least for this climate.

All work was abandoned for the three days of the celebration, and the natives devoted themselves to pleasure in their quiet way. There were no quarrels or street fights, no drunkenness to speak of compared with what would have been in evidence, I fear, if it were a three days' celebration in the states.

I have come to the conclusion that the Panamanians know how to enjoy life in a much more comfortable way than we Americans do. On Monday, November 6, the American citizens of Cristobal gave a reception to Secretary Taft in the De Lessups mansion. Of course no one lost this opportunity of meeting so great a person age as is the guest of honor. The receiving committee consisted of Gov. Magoon, Mr. Stevens, Col. Edwards, Mrs. Judge Collins, Mrs. Baird, wife of the superintendent of the P. R. R. and Sec. Taft, with Dr. Wheeler of Cristobal to present the guests to the distinguished visitors.

The band from the "Columbia," the U. S. gunboat which brought the Taft party, furnished music during the evening. Mr. Taft indulged in one dance, which was all his ponderous body could stand in this tropical climate.

The difficulty with which we received a carriage illustrates only too well the lack of enterprise and thrift on the part of the natives. A party of us engaged one of the drivers in the morning to come for us at 9:45 p.m. At 10 p.m. no carriage had come, and it was not until 10:30 that we were able to get one, and then we had to ask another party to send back their carriage for us. The one we had engaged was not enterprising enough to come out at that late hour. With all the demand for carriages that evening only a few drivers were enterprising enough to seek for patronage.

It is the same way when the boats come in early enough to dock at 6 a.m. The passengers have to remain on the boat until eight o'clock, for not a carriage driver will turn out before that hour, yet their income depends on the amount of trade they can get in a day. Shiftlessness is everywhere in evidence with these people.

Receptions are so rare in Colon, we felt this one to be an especially important affair, with so distinguished a guest to honor. Although all of the celebrities who visit the Isthmus have to land at Colon, it is seldom we at the hospital ever see them, for they always go to Panama soon after the boat docks and remain there most of the time. During the visit of the advisory board of engineers only one of them visited the Colon hospital.

Perhaps when we get full grown we will appeal to their interest more and will be honored more frequently with their august presence.

Milwaukee papers are announcing that Madison is making a mistake by laying asphalt on their city streets. Perhaps the Milwaukee paper making the comment does not understand that it was asphalt or nothing.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK. The following recent letter from Henry Clews, the New York banker, is well worth a careful perusal by people who are interested in the business welfare of the country. Mr. Clews is noted for conservatism, and is thoroughly familiar with the situation. He says:

"Easier conditions in the money market were promptly followed by a recovery in stocks, and a continuance of this recovery still depends largely upon the course of monetary affairs. Relief was obtained from three sources: partly by stock liquidation and a consequent contraction of loans; next, by borrowings abroad; and, lastly, by partial return of funds from the interior. There was some expectation that Secretary Shaw would come to the relief of the money market in case of emergency, but so far his action has not been necessary. At no time is it desirable that the money market should be under the control of a single individual, even though he be a thoroughly disinterested and high-minded Government official, but this particular paternalistic feature is one of the evils of our inelastic and confused monetary system that calls for a remedy. It is quite evident that the money market is not yet in position to aid any extended manipulation of stocks. Legitimate business requirements are still very urgent and will continue to absorb all available funds for weeks to come; shrewd bankers for seeing that any extended demands upon the banks for speculative purposes might easily bring commercial disaster. Our banks have all they can do to properly take care of regular business needs; and were funds diverted from such channels into speculative movements the result would be disastrous to business interests and seriously interfere with our present era of prosperity."

"The foreign situation is also one that prudent men cannot ignore. Russia appears to be in a state of chaos, the outcome of which is still beyond human calculations. With so many bitterly conflicting interests, and in the absence of strong leadership, the prospect of an early solution of Russia's difficulties is indeed gloomy; and so long as the situation remains so chaotic it cannot avoid exerting an unfavorable effect upon Russian credit and Russian securities, which have always suffered a sharp decline. Evidently there is no thought of placing the Russian loan at present, and foreign bankers are probably doing their utmost to sustain the market value of Russian bonds. Fortunately Paris, which is the main point of support for Russian finance, is financially strong. Berlin, however, has been somewhat inconvenienced by Russian financing; and London, while comparatively free of Russian entanglements, is in no condition to give much help, considering present low Bank of England reserves. These facts are simply cited to show that in case of necessity New York cannot readily secure any great amount of assistance from Europe. In spite of the recent drop in exchange it seems unlikely that gold will be imported in any important amounts, and, on the contrary, we are more likely to export gold as soon as our market returns to normal conditions. Imports of merchandise into the United States continue exceedingly heavy. In October last they were valued at $107,500,000, an increase of $5,200,000 over the same month last year. During the same period our exports were $154,400,000, a decrease of $8,000,000, the consequence being that the month showed an excess of imports less than $47,000,000, compared with about $70,000,000 the same month last year. This makes it sufficiently plain that the present tendency of our foreign trade is towards shipping and not attracting gold."

The speculative situation just now is exceedingly interesting. Fundamental conditions are highly encouraging and stimulating. The great wave of business activity, extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the Gulf, shows no signs whatever of recession. Our railroads, our mills, our furnaces, our mines, our merchants are all taxed to their utmost capacity, and still production does not appear to have overtaken consumption; a stage that when it arrives will be the first signal of reaction. As a result of this activity many of our railroads and our industries are making unusual earnings and unexpected gains to profit account. Prices, it is true, are high, very high and have amply discounted the prosperity of 1905; but should 1906 be a year of still greater profits, what then? However undesirable it may be, however deplorable the consequences, it seems that it will be difficult to indefinitely restrain the speculative spirit. If profits are growing, and dividends are to be increased on stocks which have not yet enjoyed that distinction, or paid upon watered stocks which have never yielded any return, it may be practically impossible to prevent a subsequent rise and an undesirable outburst of speculation. That contingency is not yet in sight, but the drift is in that direction and confidence is almost overpowering. It will therefore behove our great bankers to restrain and not encourage such an outbreak as far as is within their undeniable power. Their interests and the larger interests of the country can best be served by keeping speculation within the bounds of temperance; and upon them will chiefly fall the responsibility of exercising such restraint.

"During the remainder of the year firm rates are likely to prevail for money. The course of both the money and the stock markets, however, after the middle of January will be a matter of much curiosity. Fortunately the prospect of adverse railroad legislation is less pronounced than during midsummer. President Roosevelt is still very firm in his determination to secure some sort of regulation towards a "square deal," but he seems to be yielding somewhat in his idea of having the Government "fix the rate"; the active discussion of which is proving that such a piece of paternalism would be not only highly injurious to private property but a menace to a very large and influential labor constituency. As matters are now shaping there is little prospect of any injurious railroad legislation during the coming session of Congress."

PRESS COMMENT.
A Clock and Politicians. Evening Wisconsin: Neenah has a town clock that has not run for four years. It would probably be hard to find a Neenah politician of whom the same thing could be said.

Remember Our Koskorkong Wolf. Madison Journal: It must be annoying to the residents of rural Janesville to know that deer shooting is forbidden in the southern counties of the state for ten years.

Numerous, Yea and Many. Wausau Record: Think of it, fellow citizens, with all this splendid opportunity offered by the primary election law, she has permitted numerous, yea and many, other countries to step ahead of her and has not brought a candidate for governor.

Futile Efforts to Scare. Madison Journal: While the governor is calling in the men from over the state prominent in reform and seeking to pledge them to Lenroot the Free Press is doing its best to scare off Mr. Davidson, Mr. Connor, and the others who desire to be heard.

Let the Lifting Be General. Evening Wisconsin: From the standpoint of those who hope for purity in amateur athletics a general lifting of the lid would be a good thing. It would mark a turning point and save university athletics from unpopularity that would surely follow as a result of secret compensation of players.

Theory vs. Practice. Grantsburg Sentinel: Between advertising one week and an editorial praising nails driven into the liquor traffic's coffin another week an anti-license contribution on the front page and an alcohol ad. on the third page in one and the same issue, the Journal's quaque-versal position is pretty well demonstrated. Business

Gazette must think that people of Janesville need stirring up in some manner.

Attractions of Old Fairs. Among the attractions of an old London fair in the year 1709 was advertised a boy "that within one of his eyes had 'Dues Meus' in capital letters, and round the other a Hebrew inscription." Another was the city of Amsterdam, "every street, every individual house carved in wood, in exact proportion one to another, the Stadhuis as big as your hand."

Many Species of Insects. There are 240,000 different species of insects on earth; some of these are so small that 4,000 of them are only equal to a grain of sand.

TOOTH TALKS

"My kingdom for a horse," said the hard-put monarch.

Lots of people put up a similar cry in their discouragement over even getting a set of teeth worth anything. It's too late to lock the barn, now the horse is gone.

The teeth are all lost. Bitter is the recollection of the folly of letting them go. But what will we do now?

Possibly the bureau-drawer contains a choice collection of false teeth, not one of them being a fit.

We are discouraged trying. If it wasn't for the aged expression given us by these hollow cheeks we would GUM it the rest of our days.

FELL IN HANDS OF HIGHWAYMEN

MAN NAMED RILEY ROUGHLY USED IN BELOIT.

HE WAS BEATEN TO A PULP

Robbed of All His Valuables and Tossed in River by Bad Men Well Known Here.

Yesterday afternoon a man by the name of Riley, who is believed to live in Magnolia, came here to attend a funeral. Late in the afternoon he put his team in the local boarding-stable and took an interurban car for Beloit for the purpose of visiting with his brother. As he got off the car he was hailed by a man named Walter Conroy, with whom he had a slight acquaintance. Learning of his mission, Conroy told him that the brother in question was living at his (Conroy's) boarding-house and agreed to show him the way thither.

Driven Out of Janesville.

This Conroy was driven out of Janesville under a suspended sentence for drunkenness and a threatened prosecution for stealing coal should he ever appear here again.

On the way to the supposed residence of the brother an evil companion of Conroy's named Thompson fell in with the party.

The couple intimated to Riley that a drink would be welcome and they stopped at a saloon and after having a round persuaded him to purchase a bottle of whiskey. They then wended their way to the outskirts of the city, Riley believing all the time that he was on the way to his brother's home.

Took $1.45 and Watch.

In a desolate spot where his cries could not be heard the two men fell onto Riley and beat him to a pulp. When he arrived in Janesville this afternoon his face and head were horribly cut and bruised. When he had been beaten into insensibility the two men relieved him of $1.45 and his watch and rolled him into the river. The two vicious characters were captured by Officer Scheibel and brought to the county jail here today. Good prison sentences probably await both of them.

SETTLED THE LANE CASE OUT OF COURT

Beloit Assault and Battery Action Was Taken Up for Trial Before Jury Today.

Yesterday the action of Walker Britt vs. Waite Wright, involving the "open door" in a lane to which the farms of both parties are tributary, was settled out of court. The defendant recognized the right of the plaintiff, Britt, to use the lane for all ordinary purposes and the case which has been tried once in circuit court is ended for good and all, it is hoped. Today the assault and battery action of Jake Cohn vs. Arthur Garde was taken up before the jury. The action originated in Beloit. Rosa & Adams represent the plaintiff and W. C. Wheeler, the defendant.

Attended Big Doings: Orville S. Moore and Hiram D. Murdoch were in Chicago Saturday evening attending the largest initiation ever held in the history of the Modern Woodmen of America. 1,750 candidates were taken into the order with ceremonies at the First Illinois regiment armory on Michigan avenue. Previous to the exercises there was a grand parade in which 7,000 members of the order participated.

Drunks in Court: Three appeared before Judge Fifield in Municipal court this morning on the charge of drunk and disorderly conduct. On their pleas of guilty Teddy Holland was given $5 and costs of twenty days in jail, "Cap" Collier was given $3 and costs or seven days in jail, and Frank Williams $2 and costs or seven days in jail. Sentence in the first case was suspended pending good behavior; in the second the convicted man was extended a chance to secure the fine, and in the third the levy was paid.

Meeting Tonight: Evangelist C. F. Laad will speak again tonight at 10 South Jackson street. He spoke last night on "How to Make a Success of the Christian Life." It was a most practical and helpful discourse and thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

These meetings have no connection whatever with the Seventh-Day Adventist people. This explanation is made because some are under that impression.

Pugh of Racine, sent to prison for life, and pardoned by the then Governor Peck after twelve years' service, recently died in Milwaukee at the age of fifty-three. 500,000 Babies
Are Sacrificed

State Official Declares Adulterated Foods an Appalling Menace to the Lives of American Children.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments, the secretary of a state board made the assertion, and produced figures to prove it, that the death of nearly half a million little children in America last year was due to poisons administered in impure foods.

Think of this! Nearly half a million children sacrificed to the murderous greed of food adulterators! It behoves us all to have a care in selecting the food that comes into our homes. The health and lives of our children and our own health are at stake.

Welcome, indeed, is a food that is known to be pure and wholesome, rich in nutrition and good to eat,—so good that no other food can take its place. We refer to Malta-Vita, that delicious, crisp, whole-wheat food. Among all the cereal foods we believe we are warranted in saying that Malta-Vita is the only food that is simply and wholly pure grain product and nothing else, except a little salt. It is free from any foreign sweetening agent or other adulterant, and is made in absolute cleanliness.

A perfect breakfast is impossible without Malta-Vita, and it's just as good three times a day. Containing every food element of the best white wheat and pure barley malt extract, it is intensely vitalizing and easily digested.

Let your children have all the Malta-Vita they want and you need not fear for their health. Try some yourself with cream or fruit. You never tasted anything quite so good.

Malta-Vita, every flake baked to a crisp and always ready to eat, is sold by all grocers. Now ten cents,

Judith of the Plains

—By
MARIE MANNING,
Author of "Lord Allingham, Bankrupt".

Copyright, 1905, by Harper & Brothers

Peter caught her tenderly in his arms and kissed her once.

good that has come to you, Peter. Perhaps Miss Colebrooke told you of the day I met her in the wood, the day of the wolf hunt. She was so beautiful, I understand."

"Judith, I hardly know how to say what I am going to. I feel that I have been such a bad friend to you, but you must hear me patiently. Together, if you are willing, after knowing all of me that you do, we must look after your brother's children. That night in the little house in the valley, when the little chap came to me, don't you remember, there was something fine and fearless in the way he did it. You may belong to the cattle side of the argument, he seemed to say, 'but I trust you.' Now, Judith dear, that boy's faith in me is not going to be shaken. We must look after them together. It is a very little thing you have asked of me, my dearest, but a very big one that I am asking of you. Do you understand, my Judith, it is you that I want? Don't think of me as I have been, Judith, but as you are going to make me. I want you to give me the right now, this evening, to share all this trouble with you. Do we understand each other, Judith? Is it to be? And will you come back with me now into the room where they are dancing and let me present you to them, to the Wettmores, as my Judith, my betrothed?"

"But, Peter, I don't understand. I—

I thought you and Miss Colebrooke were—"

"That's all over, Judith. I did love her once. Oh, you dear, brave woman, I'm not a hero from any point of view, and you know it! It's but a sorry lover that's matching his prayer to you, my dearest. But you won't judge, I know, beloved. You will love me indeed!"

Judith turned toward the valley. Her whole being thrashed with a passionate response to the man who stood so humbly before her, but there were doubts that came first. Her mind was full of Alida and her children, and her eyes still sought Peter's imploringly.

"You will be a good friend to them, Peter—to Jim's people? I cannot talk to you of anything else tonight. Your heart is big, Peter, but you cannot feel perhaps?"

"Listen, Judith. Whatever friendship and protection I can give your family you may count upon from now till the end of time. I will be theirs as I am yours. I feel your grief, but I want to soothe it too. And if you love me, and I feel, Judith, that you do, you must let them all see tonight, those people who know us both, that we stand together before all the world for better or worse. Think, Judith, and you will see that you owe it to yourself, to me, to all these men, who reverence you as the one woman, the one ideal in their lonely lives."

She could not speak. The moment was too full, the strain had been too great. But she smiled, surrendered, and Peter caressed her tenderly in his arms and kissed her once. His Judith was now, his heroine. Then without

DRIVERS' UNION ASKS MORE PAY

Standard Oil Officials Are Invited to Test Living On $2 a Day.

THREE CENTS IS NET INCOME

Men Submit Figures to Show That When Their Work Is Finished Necessary Expenses Eat Up Nearly All They Get.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Some of the Chicago officials of the Standard Oil company will not accept the challenge of the Oil Wagon Drivers' union to try living on $1.97 a day. They were provided with the economic formula by a committee of the men. It is needless to say that the officials balked.

The drivers also may decide to rebel against the $1.97 standard.

Manager Hurd and his assistant, J. C. Cleverton, in charge of Standard Oil's Chicago branch, were taken by surprise when six oil wagon drivers in greasy clothes marched into the company's immaculate office at 5 Wabash avenue, removed their oil-spotted caps, and hesitatingly asked for an interview. He waved his hand, and the six sat down gingerly on the edges of as many polished mahogany chairs.

After an apprehensive silence, during which six pairs of oily shoes were planted with extreme caution on the terra cotta rug, the visitors gained courage and James Duffy, acting as chairman of the delegation, spoke.

"You see, we are a committee from the union," he began.

Kitty rose superbly to the situation. She might, indeed, have made the match, she was so overjoyed in the good fortune of her old friend Peter. She made no reference to the woodland meeting. She hoped for the happiness of seeing them in town. And she bade Peter tell the good news to Namie Wetmore. They would be so glad. Namie swallowed a grimace and proffered a coyly hand. She had suspected some such news as this when she saw that things were not going well with Kitty and Peter.

Dares to Ask Advance.

"And we should like to have our wages raised from $60 to $75 a month," continued Duffy.

Mr. Hurd and Mr. Cleverton both frowned.

"That at present is impossible," said Mr. Hurd, with a show of firmness, "and besides $60 a month is enough for an oil wagon driver."

"Surely unreasonable," exclaimed Mr. Cleverton.

Duffy and his associates wriggled in their chairs, and twisted their feet uneasily, leaving several greasy marks on the terra cotta rug.

"We were afraid you would say so," said Duffy, "and so we came prepared to demonstrate the justice of our claims." Here he drew from his pocket a piece of paper covered with writing. Mr. Hurd read as follows:

"Minimum cost of living per day: Rent, 50 cents; food, 75 cents; fuel, 30 cents; light, 7 cents; carfare, 10 cents; dinner (extra meal), 25 cents. Total, $1.97."

"That leaves just 3 cents a day out of our wages of $60 with which to purchase clothing, household goods, children's school books, and pay doctors' bills and incidentals," explained Duffy. "You can depend on its being correct for we have spent a week gathering the figures from the members of the Oil Wagon Driver's union."

"But—" began the Standard Oil official.

Offer Practical Test.

"What we want," continued the committee man spokesman, "is for you to try that formula for one week. At the expiration of that time if you say it is enough we will withdraw our demands."

Mr. Hurd adjusted his gold rimmed eye glasses excitedly. He glanced at his assistant. The two stared in astonishment at the oil drivers' committee. The committee was getting nervous in the mahogany chairs. Spokesman Duffy got up and began to twist his cap in his fingers.

"Perhaps," he said, "you might take it up with Mr. Rogers or Mr. Rockefeller."

"Perhaps," said Mr. Hurd aghast, and the committee fled out.

"I don't suppose they will try it," said Duffy afterwards. "But we have done what we could to prevent a strike."

The oil wagon drivers have secured the increased wages from three retail concerns, employing about twenty men.
